

Southeast Asian Development Center

Bilingual Community Ambassador (English/Thai)

Do you like working with disadvantaged communities and helping people to thrive and achieve their full potential? The Southeast Asian Development Center is seeking a full-time Bilingual Community Ambassador. The ideal candidate is a motivated, compassionate, and culturally competent professional with experience pertaining to outreach and community engagement, the coordination and delivery of person-centered human services, systems change advocacy, event planning and facilitation, and public and private resources in San Francisco that are relevant to low-income households, immigrants with limited English proficiency, and/or crime victims.

About Us:

Southeast Asian Development Center's (SEADC's) mission is to foster a healthy, thriving, and self-sufficient Southeast Asian American community.

Founded in 1977 in San Francisco's Tenderloin District, SEADC (formerly known as Vietnamese Youth Development Center) is a nonprofit organization dedicated to lifting children, youth, and families from Cambodia, Laos, Vietnam, and elsewhere out of poverty. Our services are structured around providing low-income and vulnerable Southeast Asian Americans with basic needs and skills critical to building successful futures. We provide jobs, academic support, language translation, health, and wellness services, and more, while promoting cultural resiliency and social integration.
